AS A MATTER OF POLICY.

It will surprise the silver producers and the western public generally, to find the Tribune expressing the thought that "the proposition to pay off the bonds of the United States in silver is a mistake as a matter of policy." Our morning contemporary has professed itself the earnest champion of silver, and yet when a proposition comes up to utilize silver, to give it the value which is stamped upon the coin, the Tribuse opposes it, as a matter of policy, because "it gives the goldites an excuse for saying that it is a more favoring repudiation, that by it a silver basis for our currency is intended, and plenty more just such meaningless charges." The position is a remarkable one. The si'ver editor of our contemporary must have been out of town when Thursday's paper was made up.

If our bonds cannot be paid in silver can as well as in gold, then the gold tes are right in their fight against silver. The struggle of the silver men has been to bring allver pledges on an equal footing with gold; to have a silver left severely alone by political parties. dollar worth as much as a gold one, in its purchasing power and in its debtpaying power. If silver has not reached that point, then the fight for the metal has been a failure, and the goldites are complete masters of the situation. The first proposition looking to the giving of life and affectiveness to the Bland of the bends with the coin, (silver if it lous a thing as the Tribuse, which, be the imperative command of the law, for when he penned the statements. government will be without the gold to pay for silver bullion. The only value that any coin can have is its purchasi g or paying value, and to say that silver should not have that value with depreciate the metal as much as legisla-tion can depreciate it. Silver is a legal tender equally with gold; everywhere

The same rule should follow with governments. The treasury is carrying an humanese balance of doubly wrong for his superior to hold. the mon y should be paid out in the recomption of the interest-hearing so use government as to give them bonds. The resolution which passed the H use of Representatives on Wednesday is intended to compet the Secretary of the Treasury to do what the related to the treasure of the resolution which the resolution of the resolution which the resolution of the resolution which passed the resolution of the resolution which passed the resolution which passed the resolution which demanded the rejection of Goode bears with extra force against the resolution which passed the resolution which passed the resolution which passed the resolution which passed the resolution of the resolution which passed the resolution which passed the resolution of the resolution which passed the resolution which passed the resolution of the resolution which passed the resolution of the resolution which passed the resolution of the resolution of the resolution which passed the debt as fast as it can be done without injuring the credit of the government.

BUILDR BORS ED

And so Ben. Butler is ambitious to again serve his country in Congress, and will be a candidate in his old district of Lowelt, Mass. What is equally surprising is the announcement that he w I p s: as a Democrat. Two years ago Builer was flying around the country in a sp cial ca , denouncing Demo-crats as only the unprincipled demaadjectives can do. His present change of punishment. But not so. complete flop that the cock eyed son of to be in possession of information im progressive Democrat. Being folled in his political ambition he came out as the blackest and most uncompromising of black Republicans, other merely the, hand of that conspirary members of his party feeling weak in which fired the fatal shot.

The Herald correspondent claims that the House of Representatives he Corkhill was preparing a statement for and see our new line of imported clothes.

of a mondescript political organization called the Greents k party which was organized to fight the Republicans. He soon tired of a hereay that was unprofitable in every respect, and in two years from the time he was the radical Republican, he appeared as a full-fledged Democrat, and was elected Governor of Massachusetts on the Democratic ticket. How the Democratic ticket which a said and done against them is one of these matters which politics alone can explain. His career in the party was cut short by his fallure to get the nomination for Fresident, when he turned up as a nominal workingman, though he had never done a day a work in his life, and enjoys the unenriable reputation of keeping wages in his factory down to the lowestendurable rate; in reality he was the paid able rate; in reality he was the paid agent of the Blaine Republicans, whose noney he freely spent in a vain effort to defeat the Democrats. It will thus be seen that his cureer has been a suc cession of political flops, the flop on every occasion being induced by a desire for money or office. It therefore will occasion little surprise that he proposes to again return to his first love. It will be very much of a surprise, however, if the Democrats have anything to do with him, as a political organization or as individuals. His course in the campaign of two years ago made it impossible for any self-respecting Demo crat to again support nim for any position. An out-and-out Republican is preferable to Butler, for the former can be found, but Builer cannot be safely located for a whole month at a time He is, more than any other prominent man in the country, a good man to be

THE Tribune, on Thursday, reasserts its statement regarding the lynching of the murderer of Captain Burt, and as everybody knew it would do, fails to verify its assertions by any other eviience than the mere declaration o of life and effectiveness to the Bland the writer of the article, which is no law, by making the silver dollar worth evidence at all, except of a fact contrary one hundred cents everywhere in the to that alleged. GARLAND SHOULD GO.

The Senate having rejected the nomination of Goode to be Solicitor-Genreference to government bonds, is to eral, Goode's file-leader and boss, the depreciate the metal as much as legislaconcy to retire. Goode was rejected for cause. He was conspicuous in the in the republic, except for the redemption of the government's bond obligs. If it has certainly been guilty of a blunder were wrong for Mr. Goode to use the government power, prestige and money Ladividuals find it most convenient to to give value to Mr. Garland's worthpay their debts when they have the less stock, it was a greater wrong money, and if they are honest they for Mr. Garland to order or permit his coin, which is kile in the value, when those shares, knowing them to be the man-y should be paid out in the valueless unless his subordinate could good financier dose not have to be told come before the Senate now, in the do-to reduce the interest-bearing light of the revelations of the past year, it would assuredly be rejected, and not by a partisan vote. If Mr. Garland has the welfare of the administration at heart he will releve Mr. Cleveland and the Democratic party of the dead weight of his occupancy of a cabinet position, and retire from the public

A SENSATION.

Everybody hoped when the assausin Charles Guiteau was hanged, that would be the last we should hear about him gogue with an excellent command of and the trial that resulted in his just tone and sentimenet is not the first pondent of the New York Herald claims destiny has made. When Butler's name ported to him by Colonel Corkbill, who was first heard beyond his own home it will be remembered as the prosecuting was as belonging to an able, vigorous attorney in the Guiteau trial, which would prove that there was a conspiracy concocted to 'remove' Garfield, and the villain Guiteau was merely the, hand of that conspirary

"And it was for any selection of the that I gave the odds on def at?" It was a moment and a picture that will never pass from my memory. Buffile man who spoke is dead. He was to have been here next week. He will never come. This matter is decidedly sensat@nal. and it may have originated in the mind of the newspaper correspondent ever auxious to create a ripple of excitement in the public mind. If there is any thing in the story it will likely be developed by an examination of Corkhili's

WHO IS TO BLAME?

The Utah Legislature has refused to make any appropriations for the support of the Territorial courts, and the Territory is already indebted to the United States some $20.00 for the expenses of keeping the legal machinery running. Senter Cullion has introduced a bill to powide for the payment of this debt by the Territory of that, it certainly is a burden which the cliness of the United States should not be compelled to carry.

The above is from the Free Press and

The above is from the Free Press Times, published at Burlington, Vt. Before the Press and Times begins to talk about the burdens the United States ought not to carry, it would be well for its writers to do a little sound thinking in relation to this Utah mr.'en. In the first place, it was not the Utah

Legislature which refused to make the needed appropriations for the support of the Territorial cours and other Territorial institutions. The Legislature made the appropriations necessary for the expenses of the Territory, judicial, educational, and benecolent; but a handsome Kentucky Re publican governor, with more beauty than sense, and more egotism than wis dom vetoed the bill, because he had failed to make a legislature chosen by the people bend to his autocratic will. The Congress, unwisely, we hold, and in violation of the spirit of American institutions, has siven the governor of this Territory absolute veto power which gives him power to render void all the patient labor of the representatives of the people, and creates in our great Republic a despotism as absolute as any known in the old monarchies of Earope. Ex-Governor Eli H. Murray. flattered by a ring of political adventhrees who have cursed Utah with their presence, imagined he could commit no outrage that would meet with a rebuke so long as it was practiced on a people unpopular as the Mormons, hence so unpopular as the Mormons, hence he vetoed the appropriation bill pre-sented to him by the triah Legislature, though he knew at the time it would stop all the machinery of the Territorial government. And for this impudent arro worthy only of a petty despothe lost his official head, And not comes the Press and Times and charges the mischiel done by Murray's madness to the Utah Legislature. We don't happen to have such legislatures as that in Utah.

As for the matter of Utah's indebtedness to the general government which worries our Vermont friend, it arises chiefly from the expense incurred in keeping up the penitentiary. When that institution was in the hands of the Territory, and its officers appointed by the Legislature, the Territory bore the expenses aris ng in connection with it. When it was taken out of the control of the people, the Legislature very properly refused to make appropriations for it. The same with some of the court claims. If the United States are determined to run all the courts in Utahtaking the whole criminal business out of the hands of the people, let them pay the expenses attached to those proceedings. The Territory stands ready to relieve the United States of all the burden of governing Utah when the na-tion will allow Utah to govern herself.
